

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

October 2, 2017

Volunteers Needed for Clean-Up "The Fly" Day
Saturday, October 7 from 9 a.m. to noon

(New Orleans, La.) – Volunteers are invited to join Audubon Nature Institute to spruce up Audubon Riverview Park, affectionately known as "The Fly," on Saturday, October 7 from 9 a.m. until noon.

The to-do list for the "Audubon Action Day" includes picking up litter, touching up landscaping and pruning crepe myrtles. The goals of the clean-up initiative are to keep trash out of the Mississippi River and help plants and trees grow and thrive.

"This park is a treasured community resource where we can all gather to celebrate the wonders of nature in open green spaces and recreational areas all overlooking the majestic Mississippi River," said Llewellyn Everage, Audubon Nature Institute Director of Volunteer and Intern Resources. "We look forward to working with everyone to beautify 'The Fly' for ourselves and our neighbors, human and animal alike."

Audubon Riverview Park is located behind Audubon Zoo, with the entrance at the far right-hand side of the Audubon Zoo parking lot.

Volunteers should wear comfortable shoes, be prepared for any weather, wear sun protection and bring a reusable water bottle. To register to volunteer click here:
<https://audubon.wufoo.com/forms/q1xm1c8t0qnts3j/>

###

Media Contact:

Frank Donze
Communications Specialist
fdonze@auduboninstitute.org
Office: (504) 212-5335